As transfers were usually not entered on these rolls, the quit-rents on alienated lands were often not collected, while the many irregularities in the land system increased the general confusion. The deputy auditor passed the quit-rent accounts according to the best information he could secure from the sheriffs, but the numerous errors in bookkeeping, and the generally unsatisfactory condition of the rent rolls, undoubtedly enabled much land to escape payments altogether. An attempt was made in 1767 to improve the situation by drawing up, in a clear manner, an exact rent roll for each county and a further reform was promised by an...
